

Frankly Speaking-

By J. A. E.

The Pine Cone greets you today under somewhat unusual circumstances—the most unusual in its twelve years of service to this community—and, we might add, perhaps the most unusual circumstances of any newspaper in the United States published in a city of our population. And this fact has impressed us to the extent that we wish to submit it to your consideration.

This is the first issue under the co-ownership and editorial direction of Allen Griffin editor of the Daily Herald of Monterey, and myself. Just what this means to our readers? Does it mean that the Daily Herald has gobbled up the Pine Cone, lock, stock and barrel, or vice-versa, that the Pine Cone has gobbled up the Herald? Well, hardly—it means neither of these. But here is the unusual thing that it does mean. The Pine Cone, over-night, under a mutual arrangement, has acquired the largest staff and greatest working facilities of any weekly newspaper in the country. In addition to its former staff and facilities, it has acquired, for you, its readers, the entire staff and facilities of the Daily Herald.

You will find it easy to agree that this is a lucky stroke and a real acquisition for the Pine Cone. It readily means, among other things, a constantly improved product. And that is what readers of any publication want—first, last and always. It is a wise editor that recognizes this and provides for it.

You have seen the Pine Cone start about as Carmel started—from a small beginning but with a firm foundation, and you have seen it grow into a real institution. But like Carmel itself, the Pine Cone is still only in its infancy—both as to its growth and its service to this community. There will be no departure from its traditions nor from its purpose. The acquisition of a better staff and greater facilities will mean an opportunity for greater service to this community.

But as "Teddy" used to express it: "Deeds, not words, are the things that count." And Carmel judges according to deeds—not words. And it judges considerably and fairly. This has always been so. And any fair-minded and well-intentioned person will always be satisfied with Carmel's verdict, because its verdict is just. This is true whether the verdict concerns one thing or another. We doubt whether in all the wide world there is a place better qualified to judge than Carmel. This is so because the people here have broken away from pre-conceived thoughts and think and act for themselves. And in this, Carmel again is "different." It stands on its own legs.

Enough of this. Now, if you are not touchy, we want to ask: "How do you like the fog?" Of course, we know that it is "unusual." Any good Californian, at all times, will readily admit that anything which is disagreeable, so far as California is concerned, is always "unusual." Certainly—why not? But how do you like the fog? If you don't like it, do as we did—take a trip to the desert. You will come back, as we did, not only liking the fog, but glad to bathe in it. So if you don't like the fog—try the antidote. It is not a bad cure, and we recommend it, most sincerely.

And, by the way, how could anyone who attended the week-end offerings at the Forest Theatre and the Golden Bough fail to feel proud of Carmel? Where is there another place in America of double, triple, or many times over, greater population, which could equal, let

SEWER PLANS PROMISED FOR EIGHTY ACRES

TRUSTEES DECIDE PINES MAY NOT BE CUT WITHOUT SUPERVISION OF EXPERTS

An informal discussion of the sewer situation in the Eighty Acre District took place at the regular adjourned meeting of the Board of Trustees of Carmel last Tuesday night. An explanation of the conditions was given by Captain W. L. Tower. Tower recommended that if a sewer was to be installed, the district surrounding 4th Avenue should also be included. The conditions in that district are similar to those in the Eighty Acres, he said, and by including a larger area, the cost would be cut down. The Board of Trustees spoke favorably of the matter and gave out definite word that something would be done in the near future. A special meeting was held Thursday night and another investigation was made into the conditions.

A recommendation from the Carmel Sanitary Board regarding the proposition of installing a sewer was made last night. The Sanitary Board met last Friday night and accepted the petition that the property owners presented.

A discussion on the matter of mutilation of pine trees within the city limits followed. The subject was brought up following the protest of a property owner against a resident who spoke of cutting down the tops of the pine trees at his home in order to get a view of the ocean. The Board of Trustees decided that any cutting down of the pines in Carmel would not be allowed without careful and expert supervision.

Bills for the month of June totalling $2400 were ordered paid.

Many From Carmel Enjoy the Opening Of Country Club

The Monterey Peninsula Golf and Country Club took its place in the social and sporting life of Carmel and the Peninsula last Friday night with 300 people in attendance at the opening, crowding to the limit the capacity of the beautiful dining room. The Carmel membership was well represented.

An elaborate banquet was served from the newly equipped kitchen, and the Hotel Del Monte orchestra provided the music for the evening's entertainment. The party was pleasantly informal despite dinner costs and evening dress, a "good party," as Charlie Van Riper characterized it.

There is a large membership of Carmel residents in the new club, among them being Arthur D. Bragg, Hal D. Bragg, Eugene Byrnes, Walter Basham, Argyll Campbell, Mrs. Irene C. Cator, Mrs. Jennie Coleman, Hugh W. Comstock, R. C. De Yoe, Fenton P. Foster, Dr. Amelia L. Gates, Hobart P. Glassell, Anne Grant, L. E. Gottfried, Herbert Heron, Mrs. Julia Hilby, Dr. Henry J. Wilson, Philip Wilson, Miss Elizabeth White, Mrs. Ethel P. Young.

SHERIDAN TO WHISTLE

Frank Sheridan left today for Oakland, where he will talk for K G O Saturday night—"recite." Frank says. Radio fans of Carmel will have to decide whether it is talk, recitation, or song, grumbled the con-committee thespian in his best hard-boiled style.

The Bookman's Monthly Score

The BOOKMAN'S monthly score, published in the July issue, carries out the usual tradition of that page in demonstrating that the height of the American brow is fairly adequate and is growing more so year by year. The score is compiled by Frank Parker Stockbridge, life member of the American Library Association, in cooperation with the public libraries of America. Stockbridge also points out that American authors preponderate in both lists, which can hardly be attributed to the sesqui-centennial but rather, possibly, to the fact that America is producing mighty good stuff.

"CLARENCE" IS TO COME BACK SOON

George Ball scored such a success at the Arts and Crafts Theatre last month with Booth Tarkington's comedy "Clarence" that he has been persuaded to repeat the play again this month. It will be given on July 16, 17, and 18.

Amy Gould and Stuart Walcott were so very good as the young Wheelers that many who attended the play last month are coming again. George Ball as "Clarence," who "was in the army" and therefore the court of last resort to the Wheelers, will repeat his pronounced success. Louise Walcott and Gladys Vander Roest are always good, and Henry Stanford, Tommie Thomson, William Sheppard and Robert Stanton are other members of an exceptionally well balanced cast.

Scores from Carmel, including many youngsters, enjoyed the spectacle of the military and naval parade in Monterey that was the main feature of the Monterey Peninsula's Independence Day celebration last Monday.

There were nearly 1700 blue-jackets, marines, infantry, cavalry, artillery and youths from the citizens' training camp in line of march. According to Colonel E. V. Smith, commandant of the C. M. T. C., this was the largest parade of Uncle Sam's forces in active service held on the Pacific Coast last Monday.

A unique feature of the parade was the arrangement of the march with the blue-jackets of the U. S. S. Mississippi in the lead. Although this was not according to custom, which holds that the sailors follow the Army forces, the rules were set aside in order to permit the Monterey Peninsula's guests, the men from the visiting battleship, to head the line of march. Incidentally this was the last day of active duty of the officer commanding the naval contingent, Lt. Commander R. J. Morrison retiring from active service on July 6th.

The parade was reviewed at the intersection of Alvarado and Main streets by Colonel Leon B. Kromer, commandant of the Presidio of Monterey, Captain Thomas C. Hart of the U. S. S. Mississippi, Acting Mayor Horace G. Langdon of Monterey, and J. P. Pryor, master of ceremonies.

Patriotic exercises were conducted at the Monterey Union High School grounds, with Chaplain James Miles Webb of the Presidio as the main speaker.

La Loma Sales Give Light On Carmel's New Developments

An interesting and direct reflection of the growing appreciation of Carmel real estate values is demonstrated in the records of the Carmel Realty company for the sale of property in the La Loma subdivision, which, two years after it was opened, is now reported to be ninety-five per cent sold out.

Thirty acres of hill and flat land were purchased outright by Ray C. De Yoe from J. F. Devendorf, two years ago. The acreage was subdivided into 86 lots on the flat and 34 on the hill, the plan of subdivision being carefully worked out and restrictions imposed so as to protect the new purchasers.

The sales consummated to date approximate a total of $100,000, all but a very few lots having been sold. There was no active sales campaign until last year, and most of the transfers were made during the past twelve months.

Four houses have already been constructed or are under course of construction in the La Loma subdivision, and twenty more homes will probably be constructed there before the first of the year, according to Mr. De Yoe.

A very interesting group of studios has been planned by R. Clarkson Coleman, whose paintings are already well known in Carmel. Mr. Coleman is now completing a beautiful and unusual studio, which will be featured by its sloping thatched roof—a bit of the "old country." Mr. Coleman has eight adjoining lots, a small square block, below the county road. The attractively planned group of studios located there will be an especially inviting introduction to Carmel.

Six Sets of Plans In Library Competition

A meeting of the Library Board of Trustees was held the end of this week to open the plans submitted for the Harrison Memorial Library. Six plans were presented to the trustees, but they may all be rejected if they are not suitable, it is understood, or admirable features from each of them may be recorded into a general plan. The object of calling for plans was to give the trustees a basis on which to work accordingly for the new library. The last date set for the plans to be in was July 6.

JUNE BUILDING HOLDS TO HIGH PRECEDENTS

April Holds Record for First Half of 1926, February Low

Carmel building permits for the six months ending June 30th, total $254,571, according to figures compiled by City Clerk Saldee Van Brower. The permits for the same period in 1925 totalled $299,506, the current year showing a decrease of $45,000 in the building index. June permits amounted to $59,250.

February was the "blue month" of 1926, permits for the short month amounting to only $4,145, the lowest of any month in several years. The high mark of the first half year of 1926 was set by April, when building permits were issued to the amount of $74,619. This was in greater amount than for any month for the past year and a half.

The record for the first six months of 1926 follows: January, $33,190; February, $4,145; March, $34,010; April, $74,619; May, $49,357; June $59,250.

Building permits issued during the month of June were: Pedro Lemos, $1500, Frank Cloury, $500, Thomas Browne, $700, Albert Somerville, $2600, A. K. Miller, $650, Ivan Kelsey, $250, N. J. SERVICE STATION PERMIT ASKED BY WM. BASHAM

Wm. Basham, former proprietor of a Carmel candy store, recently filed a petition to the City of Carmel for permission to build a service station within the city limits. The petition was read at the meeting of the Board of Trustees at their regular meeting last Tuesday night.

ANENT THE ROW-BOAT THAT FLOATED ON THE ROBOT SEA OF SLEEP

R. U. R. very nearly lost the services of one of its best "row-boats" during rehearsal last week. Louis Streiker, two fisted exponent of uppercuts, cement and dramatic art (he played in Captain Brassbound) retired to one of the comfortable wicker chairs in the rear of the theatre, intending to watch the third act rehearsing. He did, and dozed to sleep by the smooth tones of actors and directors, he curled up and sought the land of dreams. He found it, and later, much later, saw the first faint streak of dawn through the back stage windows. Lou isn't superstitious—so he says—but he reached for the old rabbit's (not robots) foot as he stole quietly out of the theatre, made his golden bow to the golden dawn, and went home, where he is still explaining!

Deep Stuff—Batting Averages By Charlie

Sensational hitting carried By Ford to the Abalone League batting championship in the closing days of the series Sunday and Monday. The Shamrock captain laced out four safeties in four times up Sunday and three in three Monday. He hit for an average of .696 to lead Harrison Godwin, Red captain and runner-up, by eighteen percentage points.

Jo Mora, first baseman of the champions, matched his captain's record hit for hit, end-day for day in the final engagements of the league. Jo got to base seven times in seven chances at bat and when the averages were compiled was in third place, just one point behind Harrison's mark.

While his rivals were on the warpath, Harrison slipped Sunday when he reached first only once in four trips to the plate. He did alone surpasses these productions by Carmel theaters, Carmel directors and a Carmel cast. Is it any wonder that Carmel has achieved for itself "a place in the sun." And these, great as they were, are only a part of Carmel's proudest possessions and insignia of real culture.

But how about the enormous week-end crowd, which descended upon Carmel and the Peninsula Section with the eagerness and appetite of an invading army? What is to be done to protect Carmel from the devastation wrought by such crowds, which, while they leave money, also leave wreckage behind. Is it a welcome guest who comes to admire our natural beauties only to destroy them? Does money—any amount of it—pay for such destruction? If a choice must be made, would not Carmel be better off without the money but with its natural beauty unharmed. What greater asset has Carmel, or will it ever have, than the natural beauty and individuality of the place, which brought you here? If that beauty is destroyed, will there be any attraction left? And then, who will come? There is a way to permit the crowds and to retain the beauty. It is important that this way be found and applied.

not play Monday. The missing score of May 30 has been found and incorporated in the records which are now complete.

Charlie Van Riper and Fred Godwin had field days Sunday and, particularly Monday, when both of them saw service in all three games. They landed fourth and fifth places among the regulars with marks of .627 and .618. The only other regular to hold a pace of .600 or better was Vic Renslow who made 21 safeties in 34 times at bat.

Of the girl players who finished the season Mary Douglas and Patty Mora, both of the Shamrocks, were high with marks of .311 and .228. Patty started slowly but was gaining confidence and batting more effectively with each game.

All told 164 players participated in league games through the series just ended, and of the total 31 played in more than one game. Twelve played in every scheduled game of their team. Nine others missed only one game.

The champion Shamrocks had the best record for turning out regularly. The list of players who did not miss a game through the season is:

Shamrocks (5) Ford, Jo Mora, Jimmy Hopper, Gordy Campbell, Patty Mora.

White Sox (3) Frenchy Murphy, Tom Douglas, Ted Kuster.

Bears (2) Ernie Schweninger, Kit Cooke.

Pirates (1) Hugh Garner.

Reds (1) Don Stanford.

Tigers (0)

Batting averages show players credited with twenty or more times at bat.

The columns are "AB" at bat; "R" runs; "RB" reached base. The percentage is obtained by averaging the times reached base against the times at bat. The run column does not enter into the calculation, being for reference only.

Team designations are abbreviated to: "S" Shamrock; "R" Red; "T" Tiger; "P" Pirate; "WS" White Sox; "B" Bears; "Sub." substitute.

HAVE YOU RENTED YOUR SUMMER COTTAGE?

If not, why don't you put an ad. in the Pine Cone classified page? If that won't rent it nothing will. Week-end visitors are pouring in, many looking for cottages. They come to the Pine Cone office for information and look over the classified page to find out what is available to rent.

Invest a few cents in a small ad. and let it run until your cottage is rented. You will be surprised with the results.

Carmel Pine Cone

CARMEL-BY-TH-SEA, CALIF.

Established February 10, 1915.
Published Weekly by the Pine Cone Press Publishing Co.
Entered as second-class matter February 10, 1915, at the postoffice at Carmel, California, under Act of March 3, 1879.
Subscription rates: One year, $2; Six months, $1.25; Three months, 65c.
The Carmel Pine Cone's circulation covers Carmel, and in addition circulates widely in the Highlands, Pebble Beach, Carmel Valley and a large portion of the Peninsula. Its policy is to print the true news and promote the welfare of Carmel and the Peninsula section.
J. A. EASTON and ALLEN GRIFFIN, Publishers.

All display advertising must be in the Pine Cone office not later than Wednesday noon for insertion in the Friday issue. Display advertising rates will be furnished upon request.

Don't Worry

We flatter ourselves that lots of people will wonder about what is going to happen to the Pine Cone. That will be great village sport for a day or two. And that is the charm of living in, by and for a village, of which Carmel is the rarest—and the only one left—in California. After all, it is consoling to realize that whatever is done with the Pine Cone—dear child—will make precious little difference a thousand years from now, which is pap for the pessimistic.

Important Announcement

According to the immemorial policy, custom and habit of newspapers, magazines and public prints, any change, addition, subtraction, division or multiplication affecting its staff of operators or owners, is the signal for the curtain to rise before a new and re-sounding act of rehashment of "policies" upon which the success, welfare and happiness of the inhabitants of its village, town, city or metropolis depend. The reader interest in such word arrangements is said to be mind-wracking and soul-shaking.

Therefore following the ringing news story of last week, page 9, column 1, that shook Carmel to its very foundations (or is it mud-sills?), the co-publishers, joint-proprietors and twin editors of the Pine Cone (owned and administered by nothing less than the Pine Cone Press Publishing Corporation—thank Bill Overstreet for the name) announce that the editorial policy of the Pine Cone will be—demonstrated in its present and future issues, for better or for worse, but mostly for Carmel, Amen!

Roger Baldwin Sallies Forth

Roger Baldwin has rested in Carmel and sallied forth again, lance poised, to tilt with the black knights who invoke civil protection on the one hand and trifle with civil liberty on the other. With him go the best wishes of the widening circle of friends and acquaintances who thank heaven that the age is not so hard-boiled and indifferent to personal sacrifice for human ideals as to discourage sincere efforts gallantly devoted by this earnest young man to the welfare of his country.

It is most pronouncedly for the good name of America that Roger Baldwin devotes his talents and his energies. He earnestly wants his country to be what it pretends to be. To him the Constitution of the United States is a living thing, as much for the protection of the privileges and rights of the individual as for the individual's acquisitions of wealth and property. Wherever officers of the law devote their legally invested authority to the mockery of Constitutional guarantees, Roger Baldwin is ready to match his lance against the windmill, disinterestedly in the cause of free speech and the right of assembly.

There is a modest gallantry, without any stigma of bravado, about the personality and devotion of Roger Baldwin. His is the type of character that Browning has described as "ever a fighter." Roger Baldwin, placed under arrest for reading from the Constitution of the United States, is not a pathetic figure. It is the blundering machinery that caused such an arrest, that becomes pathetic, woefully inadequate in its attempt to visit wrath upon this earnest, sensitive man.

The latest acquisition to leadership in the Civil Liberties Union in California is Professor Guido Marx of Stanford, just enlisted by Roger Baldwin. The professor of machine design has accepted the Northern California chairmanship of the union and is off to meet the forces that have programmed compulsory Bible instruction in the public schools of the State, and to enter combat with the guardians of California's hallowed criminal syndicalism law. California still boasts of more "political" prisoners than all the other States of the Union combined, most of their horrible crimes being on a par with those committed by Miss Anita Whitney.

Roger Baldwin has rested in Carmel and is buoyantly on the road of adventure again. A good American in the better sense of the word. Having faith in America, or else he would not fight for his faith. This is a good country, perhaps just a little better because of the vigilance of the Civil Liberties Union. Good luck to you, Roger—and come back again to Carmel when you are tired.

The Northland

It is Denmark I'm saluting with my song.
'Tis the young, rain-wimpled mother of the soil who walks the land,
Sowing, pruning, as she passes down the tempest-beaten strand.
'Tis the sister of the welkin, with the winds about her shoulders,
Who rides eastward, who rides westward, while the hunder blasts enfold her;
Through the world she ploughs her furrow deep and long.
Faint-silhouetted as a farmstead when the morning mists have risen,
She is wise as seeds in winter, she can thrive beneath the snow.
From the deep we see her grow, smiling on the waves below.
She is ocean-born, and nothing can imprison.
It is Denmark I'm saluting with my song.

It is Norway I'm saluting with my song.
'Tis the mountain-peak's young father, . . . with ice-helm on his head . . .
'Tis the forest's-brother shadowed in a mantle like the night's.
By his nets he strums the harp strings of the rippling Northern Eights.
And the future's torch he lifts is like the dawning.
It is Norway I'm saluting with my song.

It is Sweden I'm saluting with my song.
'Tis the iron mine's young mother with the star-crown in her hair.
Bringing treasure to the waters that the hand of spring lays bare.
To a psalm tune's melody forth she dances winsomely,
Smelting poems, forging deeds from out her dream-ing.
It is Sweden I'm saluting with my song.

'Tis the Northland I'm saluting with my song.
Many blossoms here are blended. Wherefore seek a borrowed boon?
Here's true living, here's the country east o' th' sun and west o' th' moon.

Summer heightens into autumn, winter leads to spring once more;
Mimers fount of wisdom feeds us, earth's wide ocean smites our shore.
Let's discern what we were made for and be strong! . . .
We ourselves can make our fortune, but no other.
'Tis the Northland I'm saluting with my song.

Reprinted from Weekly Pine Cone, issue of July 6, 1915.

In an effort to clean up Carmel the following editorial was placed on the front page of the Pine Cone of June 30, 1915:

"Ye lovers of Carmel, get busy. The town needs cleaning. Show the multitude here and to come that you have some civic pride. Clean up the debris on the streets and in the vacant lots adjacent to the streets.

"Gather all the refuse into piles, where they can be easily picked up. The Carmel Development Company will see that it is carried away. The Civic League and the Sanitary Board will also co-operate. Meet at 9:30 tomorrow morning at Manzanita Theatre. You will need a rake.

"After the 'cleanup,' please do not throw papers, torn-up letters or rubbish in the streets or chaparral. Barrels are provided. Artists are requested not to leave paint rags about."

All Saints Musicals
"There was a capacity house last Tuesday evening at the Arts and Crafts hall on the occasion of the entertainment given under the auspices of the Guild of All Saints Church.

"There was an especially well-balanced musical program rendered, those contributing their talents being Mrs. H. W. Pudap, Miss Betty Waud, Mrs. A. Lemaire, Mr. F. S. Dixon, and Mr. Argyle Campbell. "At the close of the musicale, dancing was indulged in, music for the same being provided by Mrs. W. H. Dingle."

Our New Fire Engine
"It's here! It's here! Carmel's chemical fire engine. Protection at last. It was hauled out from Monterey last Wednesday morning by Fred Leidig, and in the afternoon, under an escort of the Columbia Park Boys, was paraded up and down Ocean avenue and Lincoln. The building will be completed by the end of the week."

All Had a Good Time
"One of the most enjoyable dances given thus far this year took place at the Arts and Crafts hall last Saturday evening. The Carmel Tennis Club was host to a large company of townspeople and visiting friends. Not a single detail was omitted that would in any way contribute to the pleasure of the members and guests. The music was excellent, the floor smooth as glass, and the refreshments timely and appetizing."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor of the Pine Cone:

In the Pine Cone a few weeks ago, an idea was formulated concerning a music club. Now the project has become a reality. You will have the musical instruments that you desired. Now, I wish to present another idea—to propose a new club, suggestive of the Alliance Francaise.

Carmel, to my mind, is a large center, being a very intellectual one. What does it matter if the population is only numbered to a few thousand? Remember what Anatole France said, "In a town, in a nation, there are some people who think; the rest do not count."

In spite of its smallness, Carmel is full of thinking people, of people who count in the intellectual life of a nation. This is not my friends, a declaration of empty words; it is the truth. A few people have told me that if I staid here this winter, they would like to form a French literature club.

We have in France, many noted writers who give conferences with a view toward bringing together the French and American intellectuals. They give a talk about your writers, your artists in general, and also your mind; that mind which is going to make you the leading people of the future. I, in a smaller way, would like to create an organization of cultured minds in which to expand their knowledge of the French mind and thoughts, and who wish to know a little more about French writers and publicists.

If such a club were created here, it would be very easy to have noted French lecturers, having the United States for the Alliance Francaise, come to Carmel to deliver their messages. Some of the people of Carmel have heard of the San Francisco French Salon. It is an organization that holds monthly reunions at the Fairmont hotel. Touring writers and professors of note as well as the special conferences sent to the University of California come there and talk for an hour before a brilliant and friendly assembly.

As the first part of this communication was written at the suggestion of the ladies of the town, so is this second idea formulated at the suggestion of a few resident artists. So, let it be a question, or rather let it be something which will (or perhaps will not) exactly correspond to a desire that you may have. How would you like to have in Carmel a French Theater? That is my question. Do you care to answer it? If so, please do. It is from a chattering conversation that the most important things of mankind have been created. Is it possible for Carmel to realize what New York and Chicago have vainly attempted? Carmel does not need an Otto Kahn to sponsor its American productions. Consequently, it could very well go a Kahn in the realization of this project.

Yours in the interest of the world's art,
Jacques Marie Laumonier.

Carmel, July 5, 1926.
Editor of the Pine Cone.
Carmel, California.

Dear Sir—As a citizen and property owner in Carmel, I want to heartily endorse Mr. Perry Newberry's plea for keeping Carmel "different," published in your last issue.

I think it was a real misfortune when the picturesque old rustic watering trough was removed to make way for the present hideous "Soldiers' Memorial."

In the matters of paving the streets, especially the recent tendency to "cityfy" our roads is deplorable to all lovers of beauty. Certainly the roads should turn aside to avoid cutting down a stately tree or a lovely clump of natural shrubs. WHY NOT curve the roads and the sidewalks in order to preserve the natural beauty of our chief asset—trees?

Let those who have original ideas about improving and preserving our town along lines of beauty express these ideas through your columns, and I venture to predict that a large majority of our residents will gladly co-operate to carry out all such truly progressive and lovely ideas.

Yours very truly,
S. H. FORD.

Princess Tsianina Here Wednesday

Princess Tsianina, Cherokee Indian operatic star, who sung the title role of Charles Wakefield Cadman's American opera "Shanewis" at Hollywood Bowl before a tremendous audience last week, is in readiness for her Carmel concert to be given at the Theatre of the Golden Bough next Wednesday evening.

The Princess returned recently from Rome, where she spent much of the last year, studying operatic roles. When she met Gaetano Merola, who conducted the Hollywood Bowl Orchestra, she proudly displayed the Italian she had learned in the Imperial city.

She was born in Oklahoma, the daughter of a Cherokee father and a Creek mother, and was educated in the schools of her native state. Her musical education, however, was completed in eastern cities and in Europe.

Italy filled her with admiration, she said, but she was glad to get back "home." While in Europe she gave numerous recitals, specializing in the Indian songs of Mr. Cadman, and they were received with enthusiasm, she said. Europeans are still greatly interested in the American Indian, she said.

this, its second year. A friend has renewed a subscription to the "American Boys Magazine," and two others have just presented "The Technical World" for fifteen months. The interests of others is expressed by occasional gifts of cake or home made candy, as simple refreshments are served at the weekly meetings.

"Visiting boys are cordially invited. There are no dues and no requirements for membership, excepting the wish to join in good fellowship. Herbert Hand is the president and Louis Narvaez the secretary, and they will be happy to escort any strangers. The meetings are held on Sunday evenings at 8 o'clock at Miss Culbertson's."

Pine Needles:

To Paraphrase, "A little knowledge now and then, is desirable for the best of men." The coming pageant has disclosed a woeful lack of knowledge concerning local historical events. Inform yourself at the Carmel Library.

The Carmel summer school of art will begin its work next Wednesday, under the direction of C. P. Townsley.

It is said plans are on foot to tender an informal banquet to the speaking cast of "Junipero Serra."

A French Frock Keeps Tabs on a Juvenile Style

BUTTERICK 6943

When Paris turns its attention to frocks for the young person who spends her Summer on Normandy beaches or on the sands of the Lido, it produces frocks of beautiful simplicity. Plaits, tabs, neat collars, the Summer sleeve with fulness at the wrist, a belt that starts at the side and runs across the back make a frock that is smart after a very French fashion. Paris uses shantung, light-weight linen in charming colors, light-weight flannel and wool crepe for its cool Summer and sends the same style to America in cotton prints. The silk and cotton broadcloths and ginghams make useful dresses and the rayon alpaca and printed satens are new.

Superpower or Interconnected Systems

TAKE your choice. They both mean the same. There is no magic about either. Each merely describes one of the common sense things done by the California electric companies to give you reliable and continuous service.

Years before the word "superpower" was used to catch public fancy, California companies had begun to connect their systems with each other so that they could better supply you with power at all times.

Water shortages in one locality are relieved by power from another. Accidents to power systems seldom now mean more than a momentary shutdown. Often you never know that there has been any trouble.

California electric systems are interconnected from Mexico to Oregon and beyond. Superpower? You had it before you heard the word. In addition to providing you with reliable power it has helped to make true the facts in opposite column.

[FACTS]

- The cost of living is 65% greater than in 1913.
- The cost of electricity is less than in 1913.
- Let our Commercial Department show you how to take full advantage of this service.

Ray De Yoe Enters Assembly Primary

The candidacy of Ray C. DeYoe, prominent Carmel realtor and president of the Monterey Peninsula Rotary Club, for the office of state assemblyman from the 43rd announced last Saturday. DeYoe has entered the primaries for the office held by Assemblyman F. E. Dayton of Salinas for the past two years, Dayton having recently announced that he did not intend to run again. In a letter to John Jordan of Carmel, Dayton suggested that DeYoe enter the primaries and promised his support of De Yoe's candidacy. It is not unlikely that the Carmel realtor will enter the Assembly without opposition. He will receive strong support not only on the Monterey Peninsula, where he is well known in the three communities, but also in Salinas, where he has many friends. John Jordan, Perry Newberry, and many others in Carmel have given De Yoe their unqualified endorsement.

A Reminder of Old Times in Carmel

1382 Euclid Avenue
Berkeley, Calif., June 29, 1926.

Editor,
Carmel Pine Cone.

Greetings, Congratulations and Success!

Just received your dainty, pinky, orange-colored note, beginning "dear Subscriber—Your subscription to the Pine Cone—" etc. We hasten to say—indeed we do, hope you will "keep the Pine Cone fit to enter our home" as we could not keep home without it. It is like reading a continued story—a most intensely interesting romantic, sometimes tragic, often pathetic, always stimulating and with always "a saving sense of humor"—and a really true story. One we began to be interested in as far back as 1903. Sometime we may, or may we? tell you why we came over and were overcome by it all—Carmel, I mean. When we built the cottage at Seventh and Dolores, we never dreamed of having a 16-page Pine Cone in our block or a Postoffice just across the street.

Yes—please renew our subscription and find check enclosed.

Sincerely,
JESSIE SHORT JACKSON.

P.S.—I do not want it forgotten—I cannot forget, that I am still one of Carmel's artists, having developed there and then exhibited her "beauty spots" all over the state and as far east as New York. You may see one of my water color pictures—"The Cypress Tree" (Point Lobos) at Pine Inn (Jessie Francis Short) and one hanging in La Playa Hotel, "The Fisherman's Path." Mrs. Hand owns a small one, "The Cottontail Alley"—now a street, Carmelo, where the cottontails play no more. Have had seven studio teas here in my own home this month.

Soaker, Spree-er? Brander Matthews Gives Definition

Are you a "soaker" or a "spree-er"? No insult intended, but that is a question that arises after reading Brander Matthews' discussion of the effects of alcohol upon writers, in the current International Book Review, while analyzing Edgar Allan Poe's genius. For Carmelites who want to judge the fine points of the game, here are a few paragraphs:

"The soakers do not drink to excess," Dr. Matthews says. "They keep on taking liquor, without letting it overcome them; they do not get drunk, but they are never really sober and as a result of their relative moderation they are generally able to accomplish their daily tasks and to keep their engagements, even if they are more or less suffused with liquor."

"On the other hand, the spree-ers are absolutely sober when they are sober, which is most of the time, and they are irresponsibly drunk when they are started on a spree, which may endure for several days. In the intervals of complete sobriety between these sprees, they are not moderate drinkers, they are total abstainers, for whom alcohol has no immediate temptation."

"Then, unexpectedly, the desire comes upon them; they yield to it; they become incapable of work; and, therefore, they lose their jobs sooner or later and are thrown out on the world."

"There is no doubt as to the group to which Poe belonged. He was a spree-er; and all his writing was done in the interval when he was totally free from any influence of alcohol. His work, verse as well as prose, discloses his complete command of his intellect functioning at its uppermost power. His masterpieces as an author were made when he was unequivocally sober; and his failure to earn his living was due to his inability to resist to the weakness of his will to the deficiencies of his character."

The absence of sleeves, the shirtings of the shoulder, the wide sash and, above all, the entirely new bodice are the unmistakable evidence of French origin in a frock of pastel sky-blue Georgette printed with pale pink and lemon-yellow flowers. Paris also uses eyelet embroidery for the blouse and matching embroidery flouncing for the straight skirt. When the dress is for daytime use. The Georgettes, silk voiles and crepes de Chine make the two-to-two combination afternoon and informal dinner frock that the young girls find so useful, especially in Summer. It is also a nice type of dinner dress for the steamer.

R. U. R. Is Praised As Worthy Effort At Golden Bough

By W. L. O.

R. U. R., a satirical drama based upon the assumed super-industrialized civilization of the present day in all countries, was presented to three crowded houses at the Theatre of the Golden Bough last week end.

This splendid play—and it was a play—was produced first in the United States in 1922 by the New York Theatre Guild and since then by various semi-professional organizations and university groups.

The writer has witnessed only the local production and consequently cannot make comparisons, but undoubtedly there were two features which could not have been excelled—one, the splendid cast and the other, the stage setting.

Mr. Kuster was particularly happy in the selection of his group of scientific men—a group that had just that touch of internationalism that gave the techno-scientific character of the play the element of probability. These parts were played by William Vander Roest, Jacques Laumonier, Thomas Bickel, and Elliot Durham.

Miss Helen Judson, something of a "daisy" in her undoing of things, did the best work of her stage career. She was sweet and lovable and human throughout, and was very ably played up to by Mr. Durham.

James Dowd, as the revolting Robot, defiant, aggressive, strong of voice, and depicting unbridled passion, was a revelation in dramatic ability.

In the epilogue, giving a summary of the entire action of the drama, we saw one of the best and most appealing pieces of acting yet seen on a Carmel stage or any other stage. Fred C. Robbins, the last human being in the world, won the hearts of the audience. The transformation of the mechanical Robots, without hearts and souls, into human beings, was beautifully realized.

Well-known women enroll as pupils of Miss Halldis Stabell

Rose Waterman Harris — "When I heard Miss Stabell's lecture at the City of Paris about a year and a half ago, I realized here was a teacher who had a great message for the American woman, and now I am delighted at the opportunity of taking her course of work. I did not realize then just how wonderful her course of training is, and what a vast improvement on the present methods of physical culture used in this country. For years I have been searching for the method of dancing that would embody physical culture, for a method that could be applied particularly to the training of little girls. This course of study has extended over a period of about 15 years. In that time I experimented with many schools and investigated many systems of dancing and physical culture in this country. From these I took what I considered good and discarded what I thought impractical."

"I consider Miss Stabell's the best, quickest and most scientific of all the systems of physical culture with which I am acquainted. Her ideal of the body as an instrument. It's muscles, their development, and how to increase their tone and elasticity from a therapeutic standpoint, that is the basis of her system. Her method of corrective posture and the means of obtaining this basic principle of training the body is the newest and most comprehensible."

"I shall embody her principles in my teaching of dancing. Children prefer to dance, rather than mere physical culture exercises. So the exercises will be disguised in dances wherever possible."

Katherine Vander Roest Clark — "I join Mrs. Harris in her praise of Miss Stabell. She has done more to vitalize my body and give me a sense of power and well being I have ever had before, notwithstanding the fact I have been to several leading specialists, and one of these specialists advised Miss Stabell's work. I have had only a few lessons, but strange as it may seem, even in this short time I am stronger and better able to do my work without fatigue. I speak especially of my piano practice, which as you know is most exhausting. If other artists could know of her work, I'm sure they would embrace this opportunity of study."

'Arms and the Man' Draws Intelligent Small Audiences

By LINE
The impression a play leaves upon an audience is an interesting thing to watch and study. The impression "Arms and the Man" left on the audiences Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights of last week was particularly interesting. Without throwing any bouquets, we would like to say that they were unusually intelligent audiences. The very fact that no bit of the satire that Bernard Shaw put into the play was lost at the Forest Theatre is ample proof. And that they did enjoy the satire speaks well for the actors—for their enunciation, their diction and the portrayal of their characterizations. This, of course, leads back to the producers of the comedy—John Parker, Herbert Heron and Dr. Burton, who deserve a great deal of credit.

We would like to be able to say that the production was a complete success. But we would only be perjuring ourselves if we did. Considering the fact that the play was not adapted to an out door stage, the dramatization was particularly good. And considering the fact that this drama belongs to another period—before the World War—the audiences, although not large, were unusually responsive.

The setting of the play was a work of art. D. W. Willard, who has designed so many of the settings for the Forest Theatre in productions of past years, again came to the fore in Carmel's drama. The pine trees, which so often in the past had to be disguised, formed a natural background. The house, the balcony, the wall and the gate, were all unusual and beautiful.

A heavy fog interfered to some extent with the enjoyment of those watching the play. It was cold and on all three nights, the starry sky that gives such a lovely effect to the Forest Theatre plays, was not visible.

The voices in general were very good. The audience heard everything. Marion Todd undoubtedly did her best piece of work. Her acting, her voice and her facial expressions were all so good that the general opinion was that she did a great deal toward carrying the play through. Those who have seen her before in Carmel were pleased with her improvement. Her voice was better than it ever has been before.

Ruth Kuster added a lot of charm to the play but she has done other parts that were far superior to her "Raina." She can do much better than she did last week. We are all aware of her dramatic ability and therefore had fair reason to be disappointed.

Herbert Heron did a wonderful characterization of a difficult part. He did not make the hit with the audience that Marion Todd did, but he did some fine work. His ability on the stage, his entrance from the balcony, was some of the cleverest work ever seen here. Undoubtedly the most famous speech ever made from a Forest Theatre stage was broadcast Friday night at the first performance when Heron emphatically declared that he "is not that kind of a girl." It added a lot to the performance.

Mrs. Emma Rentdorff brought a lot of life into every one of her scenes. She as "Catherine" took the same part that she had taken when the play was produced here in 1919.

Although this was the first time Eugene Watson ever acted in Carmel, he was excellent. There never was a better Petkoff, we are sure. He played his part smoothly, with the cleverness of a professional, and he got better every night.

Henry Watson was a good Nicola. He didn't bring out the fire of his part that he could have, but he was excellent in his impassiveness. Although he was a different Nicola, he was an interesting one.

Although some said that John Parker was poorly cast for his part as Sergius, he certainly created a magnificent impression as the gallant, arrogant officer. He did some splendid acting. The scenes between Sergius and Louka was excellent.

GOLDEN BOUGH PROVIDES MOVIES

Tonight and tomorrow night the Theatre of the Golden Bough will usher in the midsummer series of selected motion pictures with "The Volga Boatman," rated as one of this year's best, followed on Sunday night by "Braveheart," starring Rod La Rocque in one of the finest of American college and football tales.

On both programs the Golden Bough will show the remarkable new film, in color, entitled "The Vision," suggested by Sir John M. Lais' famous painting "Speak! Speak!" The showing is in the nature of a preview, as far as Northern California is concerned, since San Francisco will not see "The Vision" until next week.

The latest news reel will round out these fine programs.

Tonight's feature, "The Volga Boatman," is based on the noted story by Konrad Bercovicz, who visited Carmel for a number of weeks, two years ago, and whose collections of stories under the titles "Murder" and "Gitz" have made a world sensation. "The Volga Boatman" is an absorbing romance of a princess and a Russian boatman, set against a stormy background of revolutionary Russia.

Forest Theatre Gamely Takes On "Hamlet"

Again Carmel realizes the indomitable spirit that the workers for the Forest Theatre productions possess. Scarcely is one play rehearsed, produced and over with when the cast for another is selected and rehearsed. With "Arms and the Man," now past history, "Hamlet," which is to be played on July 30 and 31, is already being rehearsed with a tentative cast. John Parker is directing the well known tragedy, with the assistance of Dr. Burton and Herbert Heron.

The Forest Theatre's dramatization of the play is to be a very modern one. In the first place it will be a swiftly moving production. Already over 1700 lines have been cut out from the original manuscript and the play has been reduced to the bone of the plot structure.

There will be no time wasted between scenes, as the play is acted both upon the stage and on the side hill beneath the pines. When one scene is over the light will be flashed on another part of the stage immediately and the acting will continue. In that way no time is lost.

One of the difficulties in selecting the cast, the producers found was that everybody wanted to play the part of the Ghost. After some consideration Robert Roe, well known poet from Monterey was selected for the part. He possesses an unusually deep and musical voice, that is sure to make the original ghost feel ashamed of himself.

Luck was again with the directors when Yadviga Naskobiack consented to play Ophelia. She took Carmel by storm some time ago when she played in the "Nursery Maid of Heaven," one of Edward Kuster's first independent productions.

Herbert Heron is to play Hamlet. The community is looking forward to his interpretation of the well known part. David O'Neil, who is here from New York for the summer, is to play the King. The "queen" will be done by Mrs. Ward, and Mr. Vander Roest will play Polonius. Tom Bickle and Fred Robbins will be the Grave Diggers. The rest of the cast has not yet been chosen.

Twelve new books of history, one of sport, and fifty-two novels were published during the past month according to the International Book Review.

Although Philip Enslow was only on the stage for a moment, he did an admirable piece of acting in his part as the courteous Russian officer.

Beauty Unadorned in Hats Is Deserted for New Modes

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

EVERY once in a while a tidal wave in fashion seems to roll with the dawn, across the country and all the women, from Maine to California, wake up wanting the same thing the same day. Once it was fanciful shoes, again it was the straightline dress, last season the call was for the little felt hat, as like other felt hats as peas in a pod, and now it is for headwear of exactly the opposite type. Yes, we have been asleep at the switch in millinery matters, overlooking the importance of the most flattering of all our belongings. But with spring came an awakening, and now women are firmly and unanimously calling for variety and beauty in their hats, and more than all, for the element of style—that is, artistic value.

popular. The fine Italian crocheted hats, that came out in small, close-fitting shapes, are developed now in larger sizes.

This diversity in shapes is matched by variety of mediums used for making them. Besides straw and hair braids, belting ribbon, tulle, silk, satin and velvet serve to fashion many hats and face and georgette are used as well. Combinations of straws with fabric, and of two different fabrics, as belting ribbon and satin or tulle and velvet, inspire designers to turn out something new every day. Some lovely new shades have been added to the list of beautiful colors featured this season. The latest are coral sand, geranium pink, June rose and a pale gold called "sunni." In ornaments, crystal and rhinestone pins are scheduled for mid-summer wear, and small silver buckles or slides have reappeared on tailored hats.

Her platform is of a radical nature and is attracting national attention. Mrs. Hamlin says: "I am in favor of eliminating the sex line and abolishing all of the women's clubs. The women themselves are raising up barriers between women and men. If the women are desirous of entering politics, let them go in with the men. I am utterly opposed to the idea of the United States joining the League of Nations and the World court. I am in favor of developing our internal waterways to the limit." Quicksand

ALL through the summer months thousands of people out for pleasure and a holiday visit Mount St. Michel on the coast of Normandy. They come there to see the cliffs, towering over the sea above the sea and, quite as much perhaps, to watch the tide come in across the endless stretch of sand that almost surrounds the rock. There is only one other tide in the world that equals it, we are told, in its height and in its restless onrush.

When the tide is out the silver beach stretches level and alluring almost as far as the eye can reach, tempting one to walk on it. But it is a treacherous beach, and those who know it best avoid it. Though it looks so innocent and beautiful it is really most dangerous. The harmless looking stretch of white beach is full of quicksands, where if one sets an unwary foot he sinks to his knees. As he struggles to get out he sinks still deeper until finally, if no one comes to his rescue, the sands gradually close over him and he disappears from view. But young people like to take chances. They are sure that their eyes will be sharp enough and their feet sufficiently swift to avoid the hidden dangers.

"You don't need to worry about me," the boy says. "I have sense enough to keep on solid ground. At the least indication of danger, I shall turn back," and he goes on.

Only a few days before I visited Mount St. Michel an adventurous young woman had wandered out upon the alluring sands and was never, before she knew it, she found herself sinking. She called to her friends, she struggled to free herself from the grip of the sand, but gradually she sank lower and lower. Fortunately friends came to her rescue, a rope was thrown to her by those who dared not go near her, and she was dragged from her living grave.

Not all the dangerous quicksands are at Mount St. Michel, nor are all the adventurous youths there who are willing to take chances upon these dangers.

Hanson was sure that he could drink safely and moderately without injury or danger to himself, but before he knew it the thing had a grip on him from which he could only with the greatest difficulty tear himself away.

There are people about us every day who are playing upon the quicksands of laziness and indifference and self-indulgence. They realize the dangers, often, but are sure that in their case at least these dangers will be avoided. The only safe procedure is to keep away from these things.

Transoceanic Talk

"Do you still want Leicester squire? Here's your party."

"Are you there?"

"Hello, Johnny, this is Sam. Don't this beat the cablegram? Thought I'd give you a ring. How's the prince and everything?"

"Oh, I say! A ripping notion! Here we chat across the ocean!"

"Thirty hundred miles or so?"

"Most extraordinary thing, you know! Quite across the wild, gigantic, bally, blooming old Atlantic!"

"Yes, some stuff! Here's you and me talking clear across the sea. How's the weather?"

"Fog—no name!"

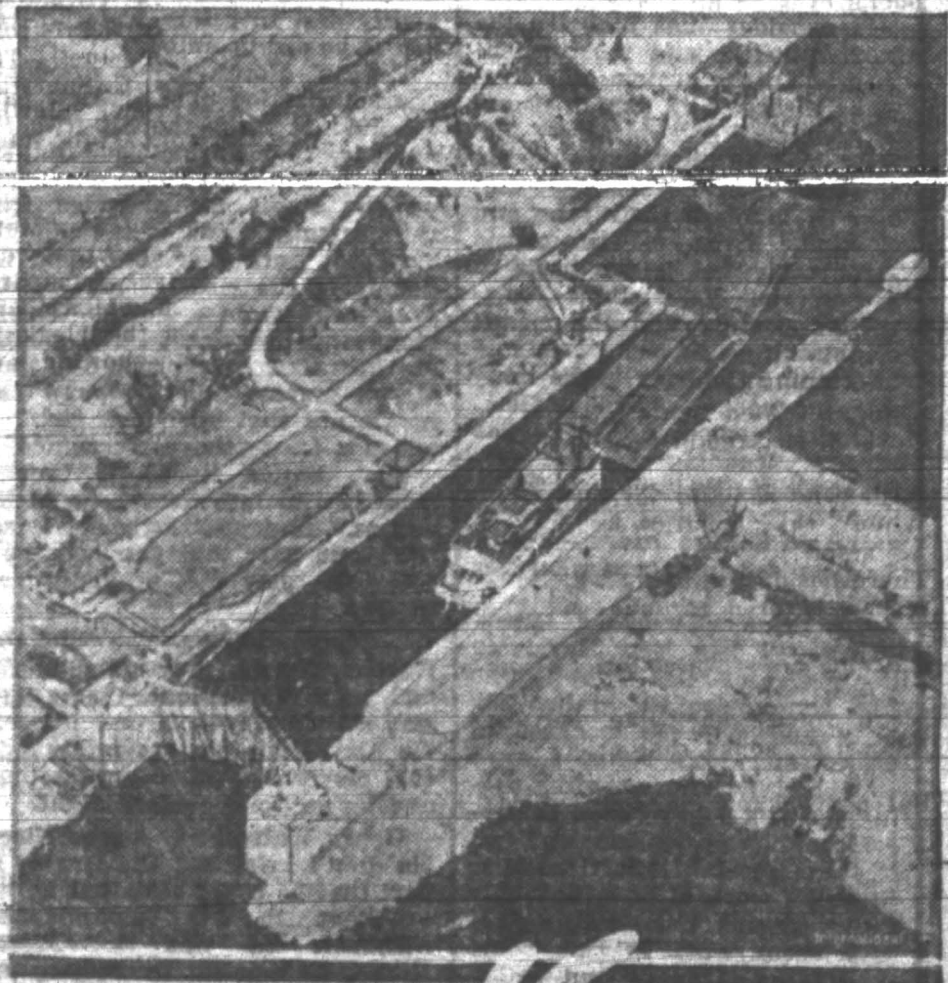

"Say, we're having just the same. (Here Big Ben rings.)"

"Well, so long, it's time to stop."

"Au revoir. Pipp-pip, old top."

Barge Line Extended to Minneapolis

The first steamboat whistle heard in Minneapolis for a quarter of a century shrilled the arrival of four government barges, ending a test trip up the Upper Mississippi river from St. Louis. This opened the operation of the Upper Mississippi River Barge Line company, and marked a big step forward in northwest development when these barges went through the Minneapolis canal locks as shown in this airplane photograph.

No ONE need stay home from a dance to-night because of the high cost of evening frocks. A dress length of Georgette and a bit of ribbon for the flower at the hip reduce French chic to very low economic terms in shillings and pence. Parisiennes are ordering frocks of this type for early Summer evenings in the Bois. The newest evening colors are the dragée shades of pink, red, violet and light green—the colors of the sugar-coated almonds the French call dragées. It is a very easy frock to make, for it is the simple one-piece style and the edges of the draperies are merely picoté.

Our society editor described her costume in detail, but the blue pencil of the editor became feverish, as he judged the photo itself illuminating beyond words. This picture is published in the Pine Cone in order to give guidance to the younger set as to the clothes appropriate pour le sport. Registration on the Monterey Peninsula, like that throughout the county, is reported below normal, with the exception of Carmel where interest in the spring election stimulated registration. The arrival of the assistant secretary of navy will be announced by the firing of the fifteen gun salute at Del Monte field.

He will be met at the field by Col. L. V. Smith, commandant of the camp, his staff officers and the entire command in formation. Col. MacNider will probably speak to the trainees immediately after his arrival when they assemble in the Memorial Hall.

The camp had several distinguished visitors yesterday, among them being Rev. Edward J. Whelan, rector of St. Ignatius Church in San Francisco. He was accompanied by Rev. Richard Gleason, S. J., also of San Francisco.

The camp held its first formal parade Wednesday afternoon with mounted and unmounted troops in the line-up. The unmounted troops paraded again this afternoon with The Thirtieth Infantry Band furnishing the music for the occasion.

CARMEL HOUSE IS OF BASQUE TYPE

Gottfried and Hale are completing a home for Mr. and Mrs. Newman at 10th and Junipero, Carmel. It is an interesting Basque style house, with seven rooms, the exterior is of stucco, with tiled roof. The house is plastered inside, the living room has a large chalk rock fireplace, a beamed ceiling and hardwood floors.

The kitchen embodies all the modern features, built in cupboard, etc. It is finished in white enamel, with a tile drain board. The bedrooms are finished in soft tinted plaster and have large windows. The outlook up the Valley is lovely, and the house is prettily situated among the trees.

The materials came from the Tynan Lumber Co.; the plumbing was handled by Pierce and Towle the plastering by Andrew Jacobson, and the wiring and electricity by Rohr.

Most of these people playing bridge are alleged bridge players.

Why You Should Let Us Put Duco on Your Car

- 1—Duco is the longest wearing finish known.
- 2—Gasoline, oil, mud, tar, turpentine, battery acids, alkaline dust, salt air, etc., cannot harm it.
- 3—You need not lose the use of your car for more than a week or ten days.
- 4—You can secure any of the season's most popular shades—in any degree of lustre, either dull, satin or polished.
- 5—A Duco finish is easier to keep clean.
- 6—The lustre of Duco actually improves with age if given ordinary care.
- 7—It will increase the resale value of your car.

"YOU"

You are the fellow that has to decide
Whether you'll do it or toss it aside.
You are the fellow who makes up your mind
Whether you'll try for the goal that's afar
What do you wish? To be known as a shirk
Or be contented to stay where you are.
Take it or leave it. Here's something to do!
Just think it over. Its' all up to you!

What do your wish? To me known as a shirk
Known as a good man who's willing to work,
Nobody here will compel you to rise;
No one will force you to open your eyes;
No one will answer for you yes or no,
Whether to stay there or wander to go.
You must decide in the face of the test
Whether you'll shirk it or give it your best.

HERALD STOVE TOP TROPHY IS WON BY HITTING SHAMROCKS

By Ford's Greenshirts Lead At Close of Sixth Season of Abalone League; Herald Cup Won Twice
By Reds and Shamrocks

By H. A.

The Reds are red; the Sox are blue.
The Shamrocks led; and By did too."

The close of the sixth season of the Abalone league leaves By Ford's Shamrocks the winners of the coveted Herald trophy. It also finds the Shamrock skipper at the head of the batting percentage. The Greenshirts won on merit, they played fine, steady ball throughout the season, turned out to a man every Sunday, and were imbued with the fighting spirit of that game leader and fine sport, By Ford.

After the Shamrocks clinched the trophy on Sunday by beating the Bears 8 to 4, the Tigers whipped the Whitesox 10 to 6, and the Reds and Pirates mixed it, and the Reds took the small end of an 11 to 8 score.

On Monday, celebrating the Fourth, the Whitesox played real baseball, and behind Don Hale's pitching beat the Bears 4 to 2. It was a closely fought game, and one of the best of the series. The Shamrocks, as if a bit ashamed of their blatant superiority, loosened up (when it didn't matter), and without their regular pitcher were so overcome by the sight of Renslow and Van Riper as the Pirate battery, they went down to a 12 to 2 defeat. The Tigers and Reds fought for second place and again the versatile Renslow and Fred Godwin appeared, and Van Riper caught for his own team, with the result that the Tigers won 5 to 2.

The Herald Trophy was put up in 1923, when Fred Godwin standing in the Herald office, suggested that it would be fine if the teams had something to play for. Any ball aggregation can have a silver cup, so, after looking carefully around to make sure Allen Griffin wasn't likely to drift in in the middle of proceedings, the nickle top was pried off the Herald stove, and carried in triumph to Carmel.

The first year the trophy was won by Harrison Godwin's Reds, from Fred Godwin's Blues, after a gruelling game on Carmel Point. The noted Abalone band and two press boxes were features of the game, and also a radio to broadcast the news of the victory to a palpitating world. In 1924 Godwin's Reds again took the lead and the trophy, and it was one of the first things rescued from the La Playa fire. It should have been. In 1925 By Ford led his Shamrock's against Godwin's Reds and in one of the closest and best games of the entire year won the Herald's prize. It was at this game that Tal Josselyn, umpire extraordinary, remarked bitterly as he dodged bats that he was going to make a new rule and umpire in the future from the side lines, as bench opinions were so likely to be the correct ones. This has all the earmarks of a dirty dig.

This season the Trophy goes once more to Ford's players. If they win it in 1927 it is theirs for keeps and the Herald will be forced to buy a new stove.

Several new players joined the league this year, and one of them, Vic Renslow, came sixth in the percentage. He has brought the science of bunting to a fine art, and it is one of the sights at the park to see him beat a bunt to first. Of the other league players, it is manifestly impossible to say who is the best. Very few people will contest By Ford's right to be named first, he has the batting, his game at short stop is excellent and he has leadership. The two Godwins, Charlie Van Riper, Halstead Yates, Jimmy Hopper, George Ball, Jo Mora, Frenchy Murphy, Gordy Campbell, Don Hale, Charlie Frost, Charlie Berkley, Boh Leiding, Paul Stoney, and Doc Stannford were all good. Of the girls, without whom no game would be complete, Patty Mora, playing for the first time this year, gave a good account of herself. Josephine Dibrell was out at the baseball party, that may be, received this year, other personalities will be indulged in, and many a game refought over the summer.

The Abalone field is now being graded and smoothed down for the midsummer games. The first of these will be played next Sunday, and will be the married men against the single men. This is always a good game, and a bitterly contested one, and will open the between season with a bang.

Once more to the Shamrocks and their captain, the Herald Trophy and our sincere congratulations.

BYRAG

(To be recited with a low frenzy, but without sex appeal).

This is good stuff—

Take my word for it—

And awfully d—d

Hard to do

(And Take) for

All God's Children got wings.

But it's got to be done

For art sakes in Carmel—

No! Carmel.

Any idiot

Can write rimes.

Even Shelley did.

But catch the

Fleeting beauty

Beneath, around, upon, within,

Without, under, above, beside

This deep thought stuff

Wrenched from the vast

Experience

Of recent contact with the

Dial, perhaps—

Hast cotched it?

No?

Nix?

Bourgeois sap!

Man's inhumanity to man

Has brought this to

The Pine Cone—

A desperate pass—

But you and I

In the tender moonlight—

Or better yet in printer's ink—

Let's scratch

Each others' backs.

These lines of beauty

Rare,

Of thought Deep,

Delicate,

More sweet, pathetic, quixotic

And hyacinthine than ever

Metre, rime — that pap for morons—

Are dedicated to thee,

Whoever'neil thou art

Who might do the same by me—

For one must live.
